George Meade's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Beat Lee at Gettysburg

Alternatives (vidIQ scores):

- George Meade's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Stopped Pickett's Charge (87)
- George Meade's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Saved the Union at Gettysburg (87)
- George Meade's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Won Gettysburg (87)

Why this thumbnail

Alternative for YouTube's Test & compare: “MY FAULT” (type 2: the enemy's own words; Lee to General Wilcox after Pickett's Charge, as Fremantle wrote it down: 'all this has been my fault').

Checked: the AI image drew small red flags in the Confederate lines; they were painted out (no battle flag anywhere). We added SEMINARY RIDGE, CEMETERY RIDGE, PICKETT and MEADE. Infantry, guns and smoke only (no tanks, aircraft or modern vehicles). The portrait is Meade's real Brady photograph (Library of Congress, public domain), not an AI likeness.

Before uploading: check the thumbnail at small size on a phone.

3. Description (copy and paste)

The first line is the title. Everything after it is the description: ready to paste, with NO links (channel rule). Keep the credit lines: the music, sound and image licences require them.

George Meade's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Beat Lee at Gettysburg

Fifty-one thousand men killed, wounded, captured or missing in three days, and the general who had to stop Robert E. Lee had been in command for just three days. On the last day, twelve and a half thousand of Lee's men marched across open fields straight at his centre. In less than an hour, about half of them were killed, wounded or captured.

In this video we break down George Gordon Meade's three greatest tactical moves: the breakthrough at Fredericksburg on 13 December 1862, where his Pennsylvania division found the one gap in Stonewall Jackson's line; the second day at Gettysburg, 2 July 1863, when Meade held a breaking line together by moving troops across the inside of his fishhook position; and the third day, 3
July 1863, when he told John Gibbon the night before exactly where Lee would strike, and Pickett's Charge broke against the Union centre.

Find the gap. Hold the inside line. Read the next blow.

Which was his greatest move: 1, 2 or 3? Tell us in the comments, and tell us which commander we should cover next.

Upload checklist

- Play the 1080p master through once (sound, sync, no black frames).
- Upload the master.
- Paste title, description and tags; upload the thumbnail (1280x720).
- Fill in the business email in the description.
- Tick 'altered or synthetic content'.
- Add end screen and cards; set visibility and schedule.
- After 24-48 h: check click-through rate and 30-second retention; if CTR is under 2% after ~1,000 impressions, switch to the alternative thumbnail.

Facts to double-check before publishing (approximate, single-source or second-hand; see research/FACT_NOTES*.md):
• Meade's division losses at Fredericksburg: report 1,770 (40%); revised OR return ~1,853 (OCR, check page image); script says 'about eighteen hundred'.
• Confederate losses at Fredericksburg (Lee's return ~5,300 vs ABT ~6,000); army sizes ~120,000 / ~78,000 (ABT 123,000 / 78,000).
• Birney episode ('almost made the stones creep'): Sears via a secondary site; 'Walker's guns' label; pontoon dates 11-12 Dec.
• Pickett's Charge losses: ABT 6,555 vs NPS ~5,500; Union ~1,500 (ABT) / ~1,700 (NPS). Battle totals are ABT's (Confederate 28,063; other counts ~23,000).
• Meade at the head of Lockwood's brigade and Baldy hit on 2 July: the family narrative in Life and Letters (said 'by his family's account').
• Gibbon's 'in your front' quote: his own recollection (1887); Lydia Leister's seventeen horses: her 1865 account.
• Sickles's move 'around 2 pm'; Vincent 'minutes ahead'; Hancock ordering the 1st Minnesota; Sickles lost a leg; rain on the night of 4 July; brigade names on the 2 July attack arrows.
• Thanks of Congress 28 Jan 1864; Meade's death 6 Nov 1872 (Philadelphia); Great Lakes survey; 'Old

Snapping Turtle' (NPS, no 1863 source).
• All front lines, control areas and some positions are approximate (research/FACT_NOTES_*.md).
