2. Title and thumbnail

Title (recommended)

2 Para's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Bluff That Won the Falklands' First Land Battle (vidIQ score 88)

Channel title pattern (Tactical Genius): name first, then the result. No negation in the hook.

Alternatives to A/B test (YouTube 'Test & compare'), with vidIQ scores:

- 2 Para's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Battle Argentina Thought It Couldn't Lose (94, but the hook is a negation)
- 2 Para's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | 500 Paratroopers vs 1,000 Defenders (86)

Why this thumbnail

All 13 Tactical Genius thumbnails use the same picture (dark aerial battlefield with red/blue unit blocks and white arrows, commander portrait on the right, red brush banner bottom-left). What decides the click is the text: the winners are 1-3 words that make sense with zero context and create tension: the hero's defiance (LET THEM COME, 1.0M views), the enemy's contempt as a real quote ("AMATEURS", 773k) or ominous stakes (AT THE GATES, 585k, 24.7x). The losers are nicknames that need background ("DUGOUT DOUG" 29k, "SEPOY GENERAL" 6k) and lines of 4+ words.

Our main thumbnail uses the winning type 1: SURRENDER OR ELSE (Keeble's bluff, the payoff of the video; no quote marks because it paraphrases the ultimatum). The portrait is a generic 1982 Parachute Regiment officer (no legal photo of H Jones or Keeble exists; never fake a real person's likeness). The AI drew a wrong flag in the settlement; it was replaced with the real Argentine flag.

Alternative thumbnails (use one for YouTube's thumbnail A/B test)

Alternatives: THEY KNEW (type 3, ominous stakes) for the A/B test. SUNRAY IS DOWN is kept as a spare, but it needs context (a losing type). AI slips on the alternatives: on THEY KNEW the two water labels are swapped (Brenton Loch is really on the west); SUNRAY IS DOWN shows tanks that were not at Goose Green.

Before uploading: check the thumbnail at small size on a phone. The banner text must be readable at 20% size.

Upload checklist

- Download the 1080p master from the Gofile link and play it through once (sound, sync, no black frames).
- Upload the master (not the 540p preview parts).
- Paste title, description and tags; upload the thumbnail (1280x720).
- Tick 'altered or synthetic content'.
- Add end screen and cards; set visibility and schedule.
- After 24-48 h: check click-through rate and 30-second retention in YouTube Studio; if CTR is under 4%, swap to an alternative thumbnail.

5. Accuracy notes

The Gemini research had several errors; the script was corrected against the Wikipedia article on the battle and its sources (Middlebrook, Fitz-Gibbon, Adkin, Freedman). If a commenter challenges a fact, these are the checked versions:

- The battle ran 28-29 May 1982; H Jones was killed on the morning of 28 May; the surrender was the morning of 29 May.
- The BBC World Service report came on 27 May, the day before the attack.
- MILAN missiles were used at Boca House, not Darwin Hill; Darwin Hill fell to A Company (13:13 local).
- The Pucará shot down the British Scout helicopter sent to evacuate Jones (Lt Richard Nunn killed).
- 2 Para was short of ammunition, water and food, but was reinforced overnight (J Company 42 Commando), so the surrender was partly a bluff.
- Casualties: British 18 killed, ~64 wounded; Argentine 45-55 killed, ~100 wounded, 961 prisoners.
- Not used: the 'sodding politician' quote (legend).

6. What's next

- The new locked style (muted front lines, territory fading from the front, night mode) is in the handover and will be used from the next video.
- Two labels are slightly cut at the top edge of the frame (about 1:24 and 16:26); fix them if the video is ever re-rendered.
- Next video: pick from research/VIDEO_IDEAS_v2.md and paste the Gemini brief.
