	Title	vidIQ	Claim check (research/FACT_NOTES.md)
A	Benedict Arnold's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Turned the Tide at Saratoga	90	His charge broke Burgoyne's line on 7 Oct (NPS, Gates's own report); Saratoga = turning point (French alliance)
B	Before He Was a Traitor: Benedict Arnold's Charge That Won Saratoga	92	Charge decisive (Gates's report; Boot Monument: 'winning for his countrymen the decisive battle'); Gates commanded the army. A stronger-worded variant 'How Benedict Arnold Won the Battle of Saratoga' scored 96 but overclaims: not recommended
C	Benedict Arnold's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | Before He Became a Traitor	91	True (treason 1780, all three moves 1775-77)

The owner picks the main title and main thumbnail; the others go into Test & compare. Judge on CTR and impressions on days 1-3, SEPARATELY from retention at 0:30 and 1:00.

Thumbnails by vidIQ (references: 3 Tactical Genius thumbnails): A NO COMMAND (86; true: he had no command on 7 Oct; fits titles A, B), B BEFORE THE TREASON (85; fits titles B, C). The portrait is an AI-generated generic Continental general in colour, not a likeness of Arnold (no life portrait in colour exists); banner spelling checked; B's map label was misspelled by the AI (HUOSON) and repainted from A. The fort is drawn as a star-shaped log fort: Breymann's redoubt was a log breastwork, so it is an illustration, not a plan.

Benedict Arnold's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Turned the Tide at Saratoga

By 1777 the Revolution was going badly: the British held New York and Philadelphia, and a second British army came down from Canada. At Saratoga, on the Hudson, about six thousand of its soldiers laid down their arms, and the victory brought France into the war. The man who broke the British line that day had no command at all. Three years later his name would become another word for traitor. This is what he did before that.

In this video we break down Benedict Arnold's three greatest tactical moves: the march to Quebec in 1775, about 350 miles up the Kennebec and down the Chaudière through the Maine wilderness, and the assault on the city in a New Year's Eve blizzard; Valcour Island in October 1776, when a fleet built from fresh-cut trees fought the Royal Navy on Lake Champlain and slipped away in the dark; and Saratoga in 1777, from Freeman's Farm to the charge on Breymann's redoubt on 7 October.

Go where the enemy says no army can go. Let the ground and the weather fight for you. Lead from the front, at the point where it is decided.

Which was his greatest move: 1, 2 or 3? Tell us in the comments, and tell us which commander we should cover next.

Upload checklist

- Play the master once (sound, sync, no black frames).
- Upload the master; paste title, description, tags; upload the main thumbnail (1280x720).
- Set up Test & compare with the other titles/thumbnails.
- Tick 'altered or synthetic content'; add end screen; schedule.
- Days 1-3: run the standard Studio prompt (research/DATA_RULES.md) and log it in research/CHANNEL_LOG.md.

Facts to double-check (arnold/research/FACT_NOTES.md, FACTCHECK_A/B/C): Quebec losses differ by source (30-60 killed, about 400 captured); surrender about 6,000 (NPS ~6,300 soldiers); Valcour vessels lost 10 or 11 of 15; the Quebec wound's side (left) rests on biographies, not the journals; how Arnold reached the field on 7 Oct is disputed (said so in the video). Gemini items NOT used: 'no man shall keep me in my tent', 'ball through my heart', '5,791', '88 vs 83 guns', '545 vs 1,032 lb', 'Ferris Bay', the officers' petition.
