2. Title and thumbnail

Title (locked, vidIQ score 90)

Stonewall Jackson's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Terrified Washington

Alternatives (vidIQ scores):

- Stonewall Jackson's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Humiliated the Union Army (89)
- Stonewall Jackson's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Routed Twice His Numbers (88)
- Stonewall Jackson's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Beat Three Union Armies (87)

Why this thumbnail

Tactical Genius picture formula: a dark aerial battlefield with red/blue unit blocks and white arrows on the left, the commander on the right, a red brush banner bottom-left. 3 ARMIES BEATEN is type 3 (stakes): the Valley Campaign, where Jackson's ~17,000 men hid behind the Massanutten Mountain and beat the forces of Banks, Frémont and Shields one at a time, the hook and the title promise.

Alternative for YouTube's Test & compare: VANISHED (type 1: the move behind the mountain / around Pope, the video's core idea).

Checked: the AI image has no text or flags of its own; we added MASSANUTTEN MOUNTAIN, JACKSON and BANKS. Infantry blocks, guns and smoke only (no tanks, aircraft or modern vehicles). The portrait is Jackson's real 1862 Winchester photograph (public domain), not an AI likeness.

Before uploading: check the thumbnail at small size on a phone.

3. Description (copy and paste)

The first line is the title. Everything after it is the description: ready to paste, with NO links (channel rule). Keep the credit lines: the music, sound and image licences require them.

Stonewall Jackson's Top 3 Legendary Tactical Moves | The Man Who Terrified Washington

More than fifty thousand Union soldiers, three separate armies, sent into one Virginia valley to crush a force of seventeen thousand men. Instead, that small force came out from behind a mountain, smashed a Union army at Winchester and chased it across the Potomac, and Washington braced for an attack.

In this video we break down Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson's three greatest tactical moves: the Shenandoah Valley Campaign of 1862, where he used the Massanutten Mountain to hide his army and beat the armies of Banks, Frémont and Shields one at a time; the flank march around John Pope's army to Manassas Junction and the Second Battle of Bull Run in August 1862; and the march across Joseph Hooker's front and the flank attack at Chancellorsville on 2 May 1863, the night he was shot by his own men.

Move fast. Mystify. Hit the weakest part.

Which was his greatest move: 1, 2 or 3? Tell us in the comments, and tell us which commander we should cover next.

Upload checklist

- Play the 1080p master through once (sound, sync, no black frames).
- Upload the master.
- Paste title, description and tags; upload the thumbnail (1280x720).
- Fill in the business email in the description.
- Tick 'altered or synthetic content'.
- Add end screen and cards; set visibility and schedule.
- After 24-48 h: check click-through rate and 30-second retention; if CTR is under 2% after ~1,000 impressions, switch to the alternative thumbnail.

Facts to double-check before publishing (approximate, single-source or second-hand; see research/FACT_NOTES*.md):
• Stanton's 'the enemy in great force are marching on Washington' and 'thirteen States' calling out militia: Henderson (1898), not read in the Official Records.
• Pope's 30 Aug dispatch ('retreating towards the mountains') and the 2 May 4:10 pm 'fleeing' dispatch (signed by an aide for Hooker): Henderson's printing of the OR.
• Valley mileage ~650 (Wikipedia 646 'in 48 days of marching'); Valley losses Union ~5,400 / Confederate ~2,800 = sum of NPS battle boxes.
• Which South Fork bridges were burned in early June 1862; the 18th North Carolina as the regiment that fired; Front Royal losses (773 vs 904).
• Second Manassas casualties are ABT's campaign figures (Union return 16 Aug-2 Sep).
• 'The largest simultaneous mass assault of the war' is the National Park Service's wording (said as such).
• Deer and rabbits before the flank attack: park historians' account, no named eyewitness.
• All front lines and some positions (Brawner Farm, Deep Cut, Dowdall's Tavern, the wounding site) are approximate (research/FACT_NOTES_*.md).
